

I believe that competition is important in fostering an independent media that can serve the public good. I am opposed to any relaxation of rules that restrict the size and reach of powerful media conglomerates.